Pérez Art Museum Miami Welcomes Ade Omotosho for Inaugural Ford Foundation Curatorial Fellowship

MIAMI – November 13, 2017 – Pérez Art Museum Miami (PAMM) announced today that Ade Omotosho has been awarded the museum’s first Ford Foundation Curatorial Fellowship. The Ford Foundation Curatorial Fellowship at PAMM is offered to undergraduate or graduate students of color who have recently completed their studies and wish to embark on a career in the curatorial field. The program supports PAMM’s mission to encourage diversity and access in the curatorial field, and seeks to address the under-representation of people of color in positions of leadership in American museums. As PAMM’s inaugural Curatorial Fellow, Ade Omotosho will gain in-depth fieldwork experience over the course of two years, working closely with curators and museum leadership to research, design, and produce upcoming exhibitions at PAMM.

“PAMM shares the Ford Foundation’s goal of creating a space for diverse voices. As a museum, we believe that authorship in the curatorial field is better served by a varied range of perspectives,” said PAMM Director Franklin Sirmans. “With his past experience in the Mellon Curatorial program and as a graduate of the UT-Austin’s art history department, Ade is poised for this inaugural position and we look forward to him joining us in our unique environment here in Miami. We are grateful for the vision and support of Ford Foundation as we work to generate exemplary scholarship.”

Ade is a recent graduate of the University of Texas at Austin where he received his Bachelors in Art History with Honors. He is the recipient of the Fulbright-Hays Grant for intensive Yoruba language study, and spent 10 weeks at the University of Ibadan, Nigeria. He has previously served as a Fellow at the Museum of Fine Arts, Houston in the department of photography. At PAMM, Ade will work within the curatorial department to support the organization of the annual reinstallations of the museum’s permanent collection, assist with the design and production of upcoming exhibitions, and conduct extensive research in his chosen area.
